

LARGE PUBLIC POWER COUNCIL PLAYING A VITAL ROLE IN HURRICANE RELIEF

Large Public Power Council members are active participants in the electric utility industry's mutual assistance programs – a voluntary partnership of federal and state government, investor-owned electric companies and municipal electric companies committed to helping restore power wherever and whenever assistance is needed.

We understand that power outages of any duration are destructive and hugely disruptive to people's lives. When called upon, we send skilled workers and specialized equipment to help with the restoration efforts of our fellow electric companies.

During this hurricane season, more than 650 LPPC company employees and contractors have provided and are providing aid to states and communities in Texas, Florida, Georgia, and Puerto Rico impacted by recent hurricanes Harvey, Irma and Maria. To date, these combined efforts include:

- Dozens of engineers, planners and technical supervisors to help aid the reconstruction efforts in Puerto Rico.
- Over 450 company employees and contractors – including line crews, contact crews, vegetation management crews, and emergency management professionals – deployed across the state of Florida.
- Almost 100 units of equipment – including bucket trucks, line trucks, flat beds, diggers, pole trailers and pick-up trucks – across the state of Florida.
- Over 50 employees to the Victoria/Bloomington area of Texas.
